Strategic & Precious Metals Processing LLC ("SPMP" or the "Company") would like to announce that Emin Eyi has stepped down as its Chief Executive Officer with immediate effect but will continue to have a key role advising the company on their branding strategy for antimony as well as focusing on other uses for SPMP's current technology. Emin Eyi was the founder and promoter of the antimony roaster concept and has made a major contribution to bringing the Oman Antimony Roaster ("OAR") into reality.

SPMP is delighted that it will still have access to Emin's immense knowledge of this commodity going forward. Emin also remains Deputy Chairman of Tri Star Resources plc, a 40% equity investor in SPMP.

The Company will be commencing an executive search for a new CEO imminently to manage the transition of the OAR into production. In the meantime, Mr. Jason Peers, an existing SPMP Director, is being appointed Interim Chief Executive Officer. Jason has been closely involved with all areas of the Company since its initial formation. He has developed a wealth of experience whilst operating in the Middle East over the last 27 years and has been involved in natural resources throughout his career.

SPMP is pleased to confirm that the OAR project remains on budget and on schedule. Cold commissioning is expected to start in January 2018. Commitments to supply concentrates have been received from a number of suppliers to enable the facility to ramp-up to design capacity by the end of 2018
